Kazakhstan is a young independent state. It is situated in Asia and neighboured by China, Kyrgyzstan, Uzbekistan and Turkmenistan. The territory of our state is 2,7 million square kilometers. The capital was moved from Almaty to Astana in 1997. The population of the country is over 19 million people (2021 estimate) and about 63% of them are Kazakhs. The climate of Kazakhstan is continental. Temperatures vary considerably from the North to the South.

Within 70 years Kazakhstan was dependent on the Russian Empire. Kazakhstan declared its independence in December 16, 1991. Since its independence Kazakhstan has made a significant progress in the development of market economy. The land of the country is rich in mineral resources. There is economic growth in Kazakhstan due to its large oil, gas, and mineral reserves.

The country is a member of different political organizations such as the UN (United Nations), the Euro-Atlantic Partnership Council, the Commonwealth of Independent states, the Shanghai Cooperation Organization and the OSCE.

Kazakhstan is a multinational country. People of 131 different nationalities live here. Kazakh is the official state language, while Russian is officially used as an "equal" language in Kazakhstan's institutions. English is very popular among the youth in Kazakhstan nowadays and it is widely used in business.

Our country is a presidential republic. In April 1991 Nursultan Nazarbayev was elected as the first president of the Republic. The Prime Minister chairs the Cabinet of ministers and serves as Kazakhstan's head of Government. The legislative body is Parliament.

Kazakhstan is divided into 14 provinces (oblasts). Each oblast is headed by an Akim (local governor). Akims are appointed by the president.

Kazakhstan is also an agricultural country. The main products are dairy products, leather, meat and wool. The country's major crops include wheat, barley, cotton, and rice. Wheat is exported to many foreign countries of the world.
